Dom Mee joined the Royal Marines in 1988 successfully completing Commando training winning the PT medal before joining 40 Commando Royal Marines. In his 15 years service he served in Northern Ireland, Iraq and was attached to Special Forces. He received two commendations for Northern Ireland and his expeditions worldwide.

He is also a successful International Yacht racer with thousands of miles of offshore experience and has taken part in races such as the Sydney to Hobart race and the Fasnet race. He is a qualified RYA Yacht Master and has been awarded the Royal Navy Sailing Associations Errol Bruce trophy on two occasions. He currently sails for the Russian national team at a world championship level.

His main presentation topics include:

- Teamwork
- Leadership
- Overcoming adversity

2007 - Led the British Ocean Rowing Team across the Atlantic a gruelling row of 37 days achieving the third fastest time in history and the fastest row over 24 hours. His team in training rowed from London to Paris and won the famous 'Great River Race' the biggest river race in Europe.

2005 – Attempted the first ever kite boat sail across the North Atlantic he endured hurricanes Irene, Katrina, Maria, Ophelia and finally Rita. On losing his sea anchor he was capsized 8 times before the vessel remained inverted. In mountainous seas and winds in excess of 70 knots waiting 30 hours for a rescue vessel in the perfect storm, he survived.

2004 – Lead a Royal Navy expedition to the Arctic to find remains of a lost ship, which they successfully found 'The Victory' lost for a 170 years. The expedition was in the heart of Polar Bear country and they were stalked by five bears under Dom's leadership, they all survived.

2003 – Kayaked Solo through the Arctic’s Northwest Passage on route to the Magnetic Pole discovered in 1831. He was attacked by a Musk Ox breaking four of his ribs he kayaked a further 200 miles while being stalked by Polar Bears, he survived.

2001 – Rowed across the North Pacific Ocean from Japan to America. During the voyage he had to survive through 3 Cat 5 Typhoons in a 23 foot open boat. After rowing 5000 miles the voyage was cut short by a fishing trawler with no one on watch running down Dom’s row boat, he survived.
